

PLAN FOR TENTH ANNIVERSARY OF DOYLESTOWN FAIR

Reduced Prices Established
For Tickets Purchased in Advance

DISTRIBUTE THE LISTS

Five Days and Nights, Starting
September
27th

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 14.—The tenth anniversary of the Doylestown Fair will be celebrated this season in a most auspicious manner, starting Tuesday, September 27, and continuing five days and nights, closing the evening of October 1.

Keeping in trend with the times the directors of the fair have made admission prices available for everybody by establishing a reduced rate for tickets bought in advance. Other reductions have been made that will prevail during fair week. The special ticket sale stops Sept. 24th.

Thousands of premium lists and entry blanks are being distributed now and are available at the office of the Secretary J. Allen Gardy.

Tuesday of fair week will be "children's day," when school children from every section of Bucks county will be the guests of the fair officials, with a monster free show as one of the many attractions.

"We expect to continue our policy known throughout the state of conducting a clean fair that will not be embarrassing for the young folks and grown-ups to attend," declared Dr. H. W. Turner, of New Hope, state veterinarian and president of the fair today.

Wednesday will be "American Legion Day" with the drum and bugle corps, band and drill team competition in the evening in front of the big grandstand, preceded by a short street parade. This will be the most colorful event of the week, with Army, Navy and Marine Corps officials as judges. First prize will be $100 while other prizes will be $50, $40, $30 and $20. The event is sponsored by the A. R. Atkinson, Jr. Post, American Legion, of Doylestown, the same Post that will sponsor the ninth district Legion rally in Doylestown on Armistice Day.

"Big Thursday" will have the usual number of attractions with a fine harness racing program that promises to surpass any previous event of its kind. "Politicians' Day" has been scheduled for this year for Thursday when leaders of both Republican and Democratic parties will have their spokesmen on hand.

The horse show this year will be held two days, Thursday and Friday. Premium lists for the horse show are being distributed by J. Stanley Lee, of Newtown, the director in charge. Entries for the horse show will close tomorrow. Some of the leading stables of Pennsylvania and New Jersey will be represented in the horse show this year.

The cattle show this year will be restricted to Bucks County herds only, according to an announcement by Walter Jackson, of Newtown, the department manager. His assistants this year will be Wilmer Twining, Wyncombe; Claude L. Myers, Plumsteadville, and Joseph P. Canby, Jr., Hulmeville. The hog show will again be in charge of George A. Neff, of Doylestown, and judging will be done on Tuesday of fair week.

Entries in the farm produce show will be greater than ever before according to the manager, Albert H. Vasey, of Lumberville. The fruit show too, under the direction of Samuel L. Paxson, of Lumberville, will have a record number of entries.

Game Protector Warren Fretz, of Doylestown, has again been appointed manager of the dog and pet show and the usual number of cash prizes have been appointed manager of the dog and pet show and the usual number of cash prizes have been offered.

As usual an outstanding feature of the fair will be the Fall Show of the Philadelphia Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' Association, with Marshall W. Taylor, of Philadelphia, as department manager, and Philip Heid, of Norristown, as show superintendent. Entries are being sent to John F. Zimmerman, of Croydon, Pa. Entries for the show will close tomorrow night. The third annual banquet of the Philadelphia Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' Association will be held on Tuesday night, September 27, at 8 o'clock, on the fair grounds.

Indications point to over 500 entries in the poultry show to be managed again this year by Charles Worthington. The entries close on September 20 and are being made with Secretary Gardy at his office in Doylestown.

The women will play an important part in the fair again this year with Mrs. Ralph Dunn, of Mechanicsville, and Mrs. George G. Bennett, of Yardley, as department managers. Mrs. Howard Funk, of New Hope, Mrs. Howard W. Flack, Jr., of Carversville, head the baking department. The preserving, pickling and canning show will be in charge of Mrs. Clayton Zetty, of Warrington.

Arts and crafts will play no small part in a department headed by Mrs. (Continued on Page 4)

HOOVER TO PRESS HIS CASE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—President Hoover and his campaign organization, by public admission, had been jolted into the realization today that strenuous measures are necessary if the Republicans are to retain possession of the White House against Franklin D. Roosevelt. The unexpected Democratic sweep of Maine in state elections had served to remodel entirely the political strategy mapped out originally for the President. Instead of remaining aloof from the national arena on the premise his every moment was occupied in wrestling the country from the ill-fated depression, it seemed certain today President Hoover, from now until election time, would press his case vigorously with the electorate.

Doumer's Assassin Is Sent To The Guillotine

PARIS, Sept. 14.—(INS)—Paul Gorguloff, assassin of former President Paul Doumer, died on the guillotine today.

The knife, scheduled to carry out the deadly mission a few minutes earlier, fell at exactly 5:57 a. m., delayed when the man who once styled himself a "Cossack" struggled as the end approached.

There was no demonstration among the hundred civilian spectators who witnessed the execution.

When Gorguloff was awakened in his cell at the Sane Prison his first words were:

"I am not afraid." Then, in silence, he drank two glasses of rum.

A Russian priest administered the confession in the Russian language, after which Gorguloff declared:

"Russia and France—I love both. I am dying for my idea. I pray that my son soon to be born will be a doctor and not a Bolshevik."

"I beg the forgiveness of the world. Tell my wife I love her much."

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 14.—Pleading guilty to charges of beating up a Eureka farm wife and then robbing her of $200, John J. Sullivan, of Nesheim, was sentenced by President Judge Hiram H. Keller to serve not less than ten or more than twenty years at hard labor and solitary confinement in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

Sergeant Reese Davis, of the Doylestown State Police, testified as the prosecutor that Sullivan, a man of large stature, attacked Mrs. Abram Carver on July 26th at her home. He beat her over the head with a crank handle, gagged her mouth with mud, tied her hands and then dragged her from the chicken house to the farm house, where he demanded that Mrs. Carver show him where the money was kept. He then stole $200 in cash that was hidden underneath a mattress in a bedroom upstairs.

Sullivan is a married man. His wife is a ward of the County Home now and his seven children are being cared for by aid society relief. Sullivan carried a .22-caliber pistol in the holdup. On the witness stand the defendant denied that he gagged Mrs. Carver and that he received no more than $118.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan, wife of the defendant, testified that she was sure that her husband did the job for the sake of his children. "To get something for them to eat and wear," but when the Court questioned her it was found that Mrs. Carver received none of the money stolen by her husband. Sullivan told Sergeant Davis that he went to Philadelphia with the money where his pocket was picked.

Fred Hammon, of Johnstown, pleaded guilty to a charge of fornication brought by Russell Black, Yardley farmer, who testified that Hammon, a farm hand in his employ for six days, attacked Margaret Hoffman, employed as a domestic at the Black farm. In pronouncing sentence of 100 fine and costs, the maximum in Pennsylvania for the offense, Judge Calvin S. Boyer said that he was very sorry that he could not send Hammon to the penitentiary.

For stealing gasoline from the tank of an automobile owned by George E. Smith, Bridgewater, on August 12, Thomas Burke, 22, and John Zuivila, 20, pleaded guilty. Judge Keller suspended sentence and placed both youths on probation for two years. They testified they had been out of work for some time.

John Lesky, 23, and Elwood Seltzer, 22, of Morrisville, pleaded guilty to feloniously entering Wildman's Restaurant, Morrisville, on August 11 and stealing a small sum of money. They told the Court that they were both drunk at the time and did not know what they were doing.

Only One-Half, Registered Pa. Vehicles, Inspected

With less than three weeks remaining for motor vehicle owners to comply with the law requiring inspection of their cars, only about one-half of the registered vehicles in the State have been inspected, according to figures obtained by the Keystone Automobile Club of the Department of Revenue.

Edward B. Watson, manager of the Bucks County Division of the Club, said that of the 1,642,999 motor vehicles registered as of September 1, approximately 750,000 have been inspected and approved in the period July 1 to September 12.

"The significance of these figures is that nearly 900,000 automobiles must pass inspection before October 1. Official Inspection Stations will be taxed to capacity to accommodate all the remaining cars if they are submitted in a steady stream beginning this week. If, however, there is continued delay in taking cars to inspection stations it will be impossible to have all examined and approved before the end of the inspection period."

For the benefit of motorists not acquainted with the provisions of the law, it is explained that there are two inspection periods—January 1 to March 31, and July 1 to September 30. Motor vehicles not equipped with "approval" stickers are barred from the highways in the three-month interval between the inspection periods. Owners of uninspected vehicles are subject to a fine of $10 and costs or five days in jail, in default.

NEW INSTITUTE PLAN APPROVED, BRISTOL SCHOOLS

Arrangements Approved By
Pa. Dept. of Public Instruction

TO BE NO HALF-SESSIONS

Plan Includes Three Days For Schoolmen's Week; Visiting Speakers Here

A plan of institute program arranged in lieu of the extension work which has been carried on at Bristol public schools for the past few years, and which will save a considerable sum of money, has been approved by Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction.

This plan, submitted by Superintendent of Public Schools Howard E. James, meets the lawful requirements for institute, according to Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of schools, and Dr. Henry Klonower, director of the Teachers' Bureau, Department of Public Instruction, and has been approved by these two.

The plan to be carried out for the members of the faculty of Bristol public schools this term will be:

1. To have the group of teachers attend the three days' session of Schoolmen's Week at the University of Pennsylvania.

2. One day to visit schools in other districts.

3. Invite members of the State Department, as well as instructors in State Teachers' Colleges, to address the staff of teachers from time to time.

The elimination of the extension work here will do away with the half-day sessions on Wednesday of the first half of the term, making full sessions the entire school year. The extension work was previously taken up by the instructors Wednesday afternoons. Instead the schools will be closed four days for the first two parts of the new plan to be carried out; and in addition addresses will be given by visiting speakers from time to time.

Participation in Schoolmen's Week in Philadelphia will occur three days, starting March 8th.

THE FIREPLACE

Those who are supplied with fireplaces in their homes feel no resentment as the chilly evenings of the early fall arrive, with their promise of colder evenings and the winter not far away. The chill of fall can be welcomed because it provides good reason for a blaze in the fireplace with the joy and good cheer possible as the fire crackles and develops, and ashes drop and the fire burns itself out.

The family gathers about the fire, as the lure is strong and there is promise of a happy hour. It is a proper place to visit, or read, or smoke, to relax and dream. The glow of the fireplace is cheerful, companionable and inviting. One may watch the curling smoke, and jets of flame, the ruddy glow and find ever a new picture always interesting.

Fireplaces are domestic, belong in the home where a family is found. The selfish man and the miser might refuse them, certainly could not hope to see their charm, glimpse the picture or feel the spell. The hour of peace, kindly contemplation and retrospection comes as the evening wears away and the fire burns low, the hour with its soothing and sweetening effect on life. Those hours come only in the home. They are for the generous, the kindly, the helpful to know and enjoy.

THE MAINE LEGEND

"As Maine goes so goes the nation" is more legend than fact. The legend dates back to 1840 and enjoys wide credence today, although subsequent history has not consistently supported it.

What has kept the superstition alive is the fact that the Maine gubernatorial election is the only one immediately preceding the presidential election. Maine would have it so because it enjoys the tradition and likes to see national political figures at close range. And even though the legend is fanciful the election is a first thing worth political notice beyond the state's borders.

The facts in the case are these: Before separating from Massachusetts in 1820 the area now Maine was strongly Democratic in a state mainly Federalist in tendency. In 1840, when everyone including the Whigs expected Maine to go Democratic as usual, the Whigs carried the state. The following November General Harrison was elected president and the legend was established.

The goats didn't wait for that court ruling permitting them to hereafter smell like goats.

The man found asleep in a slumber closed since June was probably attending a benefit with his wife.

Boys ago in Palestine there lived a creature with ponderous jaw and jutting brows. The first congressman!

You'll notice, however, that the world never seems religion and behaves well during the same period.

There's one consolation. The longer people put off buying, the more they'll have to buy when they start.

There isn't much opportunity for easy money in a small town. No luck will pay you to let him alone.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

DAPHNE HAINES, seventeen and lovely, finds life intolerable because of a nagging, jealous stepmother whose main aim is to promote a courtship between her own daughter, Crystal, and wealthy, attractive Ralph McKevitt. Catching a fleeting glimpse of Daphne, the "prize" young man admires her. Mrs. Haines, fearing the rivalry of the younger girl, schemes to eliminate her from the scene. Daphne dismayed when she realizes how completely these two calculating women have her father in their power, comforts herself by spinning secret dreams of a day when "someone will really love her—a man, big, powerful, handsome, like Ralph! A sordid quarrel is provoked between Haines and his wife because of the woman's reckless expenditures. Subtly Mrs. Haines draws Daphne into the brawl. Feeling the hopelessness of her situation, Daphne determines to make her own way in the world, and leaves for San Francisco. With twenty dollars capital she seeks employment and learns it is hard to find.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE late afternoon sun shone full on Daphne's face. It shone on her clear white skin, with the faint line of freckles over the bridge of her nose. It deepened the dark circles under the wide gray eyes, betrayed the tremulous weariness in her lovely, unpainted mouth.

Mr. Gartz fingered his watch chain, a large elk's tooth mounted in gold, and his pale tongue came out and licked his lips.

"About the position," she began. "I was going by, so I thought I would come in again. You said that perhaps—that you might—"

"Well, maybe I could use someone," he said, "if we could suit each other."

"I'm really a good stenographer," she broke in eagerly, "and I know I can take care of your books!"

He pulled his chair a little nearer. "But do you think you can take care of me?" His pale lips were smiling, showing stained yellow teeth.

A bell rang outside. There was the sound of hurrying feet, laughter. The millinery hands were going home. The girl with the black satin dress passed the glass door, struggling into a soiled white coat as she ran. A thickset man with his hat on the back of his head and a black cigar in his teeth, opened the door a crack.

"Night, Gartz!"

"Sit down, baby," Gartz said to Daphne, who had risen. "You mustn't mind an old fellow like me, having a little joke. Now we can talk nice. I got a nice position here for a good girl. Thirty a week. How does that sound?"

before she remembered the little red purse . . . she had left it on Gartz' desk.

Her last five dollars was in it, there was no choice, she had to go back.

The wizened elevator man was still there. "Would you mind going up to the fifth floor and getting a red purse I left by mistake in Mr. Gartz' office?"

"I'll take you up, and you get it," he suggested. "I don't like foolin' around strange purses—"

"No—oh please—please get it for me. I'll give you fifty cents if you will—"

"Well—" he agreed without enthusiasm.

Daphne waited. There was the squeaking and jangling of the elevator, the bang of doors opening and closing upstairs. The sickly smell of the refuse from the market came through the openwork iron door from the elevator shaft, nauseating her. She waited in an agony of suspense and loathing.

After a while the car came back, the little old man shook his head. "Everybody's gone," he said, "I can't get in. The janitor could mumble, but he wouldn't let nobody take nuthin' out—"

"I'll come back in the morning at eight," she said. "Will you be here then?"

He nodded. "S'long."

She had no money for dinner, and no carfare. "Well, I don't feel like eating anyway," she thought philosophically, "and the walk will do me good . . . oh, wasn't I the fool to go back there for the job—I knew he was horrid—I just knew it—"

It was pleasant walking in the cool of the early evening. At least the first half hour of it was pleasant. But it was such a long walk, up and down so many hills, and the pavement was so hard . . . It was half-past seven when she dropped herself up the front stairs, and grappled her way down the dark hall to her room.

She thought of borrowing five cents from Mrs. Hinkle or one of the roomers, but no one was astir but the old lady, sipping her coffee at the kitchen table, and she sighed heavily as Daphne entered.

"Ach—Gott!" She did not look up. Her wrinkled old face looked stern and sad. What if she didn't have the money either? What if there wouldn't be the money to pay her for next month's rent . . .

Daphne tiptoed back to her room, put on her hat and coat and began the long walk downtown. Twice automobiles stopped and men called to her, "Want to ride?"

They looked kindly and gentlemanly enough. But so did Gartz! Daphne was taking no more chances. She walked doggedly on.

The little elevator man was waiting with the purse when she reached the building. "I thought you was going to be here at eight!"

"I guess I'm late," Daphne murmured. "Thank you so much."

"Well—say—I thought you promised—" he began in a quer-

Regularly she took her old seat in the employment office.

ulous, cracked voice, full of disappointment.

"Oh—of course!" Daphne remembered the fifty cents she had promised. With a smile for the little old fellow she reached in the purse. "Why—why—" she faltered.

"Is anthin' wrong?" he asked anxiously.

"Let me—sit down—" she whispered, feeling her knees give way beneath her. He gave her his stool in the elevator and watched her with growing concern.

"Say, you're sick!" he decided. "No—no—not sick—"

"Well, then—you've lost some money out of that purse. Say—ef you think I took anythin—" He bristled with outraged pride.

"Oh, no, no—" She laughed through the tears that she couldn't wink away. "Of course not—here!" She handed him the fifty cents she had promised.

"Thanky." He beamed on her. "That's real nice of you. Money don't come too easy 'round here."

"No," she smiled back, "it doesn't."

"Good-bye!" he called after her. "Take care of yerself!"

She was still smiling, a little crooked smile, when she found her old seat in the employment office.

"You have a hole in your stocking!" the girl next to her volunteered.

Daphne looked down at it without much interest. "It doesn't matter," she said.

Nothing mattered very much. Her five dollars was gone. She discovered the loss when she gave the elevator man the promised half dollar. The red purse held five cents now. Five cents and two postage stamps and a powder puff.

KOPPERS COKE

Why is a Koppers Coke fire so easy to regulate?

In Koppers Coke, there are no uncertain elements to consider. All the unnecessary features of the fuel have been removed. It is a question of following directions so simple that even a child can understand them. Women who occasionally must tend furnace have developed a real preference for Koppers Coke.

Does Koppers Coke burn with a flame?

Principally with a glow—slow and steady. The gases responsible for flame have been removed. Koppers Coke is almost pure carbon, which is the prime requisite to good heating. The absence of smoke and soot are great assets in favor of Koppers Coke.

Why does Koppers Coke have less ashes?

Because it is made from coals selected for their low ash content. And because it burns completely. Little unburned fuel falls through the grates.

Does Koppers Coke give off gases?

The danger of gases is entirely absent when you use Koppers Coke. The gases that sometimes cause trouble in your furnace are removed in the manufacture of Koppers Coke.

FARM SCHOOL COACH IS DEVELOPING FAST XI.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 14.—Coach Samuel B. Samuels, former Massachusetts Aggie star who is entering his ninth year as football coach at National Farm School said today that his backfield shows indications of being the fastest ever developed at the school and that his line shows great potential strength.

Football is the major sport at Farm School, with a student body of 250 huskies from every section of the United States. The schedule adopted this season is the most difficult in the thirty years of football history at the school.

The opening game will be on October 1, with Hartwick College, of Oneida, N. Y., at Farm School. All games are to be played at home this year and no expense has been spared in giving football fans in this section of the state some real teams to see in action. The balance of the schedule is as follows: October 8, Emerson School, of Washington, D. C.; October 15, Harrisburg Academy; October 22, Elizabethtown College; October 29, Stockbridge Agricultural College, of Amherst, Mass.; November 12, Perkiomen School, of Pennsylvania; November 19, Pennington School; November 24, Stevens Trades School.

Only four letter-men are available this year from last year's squad but Coach Samuels has a fine squad of promising material in addition. George "Ox" Vandernoot, 265-pound tackle and captain of the team, is the ace of the Aggie performers. Other letter men include Leo Waldman, Pittsburgh; Babe Harman, Philadelphia, and Robert Kirshenbaum, Ga., all backfield material. Other backfield material includes "Mush" Plevinsky, Camden; Harry Goldman, Atlantic City; "Hatchet" Rosten, New York; Berney Merkin, Easton, and Johnny Segal, Cleveland.

On the Green and Gold Bulldog squad are the following outstanding line candidates: "Mugs" Nagle, Brooklyn; Clarence Mersky, Worcester, Mass.; centers: "Crowfoot" Cohen, Philadelphia, tackle: "Stretch" Engleberg, Colorado, and Johnny Wascavage, Wilkes-Barre, guards: "Marble" Triol, Abington, "Lake" Coven, Springfield, Mass., and Jack Zeigler, New York City, guards. Others who are promising as line material include Pete Matcovitch, Plymouth; Johnny Pirman, Philadelphia, and Aaron Kline, New Castle.

BOWLING RESULTS

Last night on Bristol alleys the Harriman team took four points from the Odd Fellows, the latter team being the new team in the league and from their showing last night against the veteran Harriman club some of the teams in the league will have to step on it before the season ends.

Friction Caused by South
Langhorne Council Act

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Sept. 14.—Much friction has been caused in this borough over the resolution of borough council barring the local fire company from answering alarms other than those here or in Oakhurst, and the resultant repudiation of said resolution by the fire company.

The fire company was instructed by council not to answer outside calls unless given by certain designated officials. Fire company officers declare that the council has no jurisdiction in the matter of what alarms the company shall answer, while some officers state the fire-fighters will answer alarms as they wish.

Charles O'Brien, president of council, says the resolution is actuated by the large increase in the fire company's expenses, and that he wishes to save all money possible.

Judge Keller suspended a prison sentence of six months to two years and placed the boys on probation for two years. He warned the proprietor of Wildman's Restaurant and pool room to keep a close watch on boys who bum around that place and informed the proprietor that it is not the type place in these days for youths to waste their money.

Max Burnick, of Ottsville, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor at his home. His place was raided by Sergeant Reese Davis, of the Doylestown State Police, and 780 bottles of beer and 10 gallons of whiskey seized. Burnick, who has a wife and four children, admitted that he had made the liquor in an effort to get a bit of money together to keep his family. Judge Keller suspended a prison sentence of two months and placed the defendant on probation for two years on condition that any officer of the law can at any time enter the Burnick premises and make a complete search for liquor during the period of probation.
